Facts and Figures

Why did I write the book?
Because...
• It didn’t exist and I was looking for a children’s picture book about Silicon Valley when we moved here.
• I like exploring new places and learn about them with my children.
• I am fascinated by technology, success, and education.
• If not me, who then?

We live in a fascinating place at a fascinating time. But how could I bring that across to our visitors? At the same time, I was observing a trend in education to replicate success rather than equipping the next generation with a tool box of skills that let them develop their own success stories based on passion and a sense of purpose and fulfillment.
My “Journey to Silicon Valley” starts with the real place and through that explores the mindset that lies behind this success — it leads the reader beyond the geographical location to unfold the possibilities in themselves.

I hope you enjoy it and help me bring it to readers in Silicon Valley and beyond!
